FOURTH GRADERS LEARN TOOTH CARE

Recently Mrs. Kristi Seamonson visited Mrs. Gregorash's fourth grade class to give a presentation on dental care. Mrs. Seamonson graduated in December in Dental Hygiene from Madison Area Technical College and is Mrs. Gregorash's sister. She talked to the class about proper dental care, including brushing and flossing techniques, proper diet, and flouride. Each student in the class was given a toothbrush, floss, and disclosing tablets. Kristi also checked each student's brushing. She donated to the class a story she wrote about "Mickey Molar" and two board games with trivia questions abouth teeth which she made.

The students really enjoyed her presentation and have made thank-you cards for Kristi.

KINDERGARTENERS HELP FOOD SHELF

Our Luck Lions and Tigers kindergarten classes collected two boxes of food to share with families in Polk County for the holiday season.

The project was the outgrowth of an article in our Weekly Reader Surprise Newspaper about a food bank. The children decided this was a good way to share Christmas with someone who didn't have as much in their cupboards as we did.

Initially we collected until just before Christmas vacation; however, more food has come in since then so we will make it an ongoing project for the rest of the year. We will open it to any other grades who wish to participate. Donations of food can be brought to our room any time.

We received a letter of appreciation from the West Cap Food Pantry which said in part, "Without donations like yours, we would not be able to continue this valuable service in our county."

SUGGESTED GUIDELINES FOR TEENAGE PARTIES

When Your Teen is Going to a Party

Make sure that your basic ground rules, such as parental supervision and no alcohol, will be followed before you give your consent to attend a party. Know the name, address and phone number of the place where the party will be held. Set a time for your teenager to be home. Parents should be awake (or expect to be awakened) when a teenager comes in at night. More specifically...

1. Call the host parent. Make sure your basic ground rules for the party will be followed. If your teenager complains that you don't trust him or her, explain that the issue is not one of trust, but rather an issue of parents agreeing to certain ground rules.
2. Check the party plans beforehand with your teenager. Know where your child is going and with whom. When taking your teenager to a party, wait to see that he or she is inside the house. If you don't know the host parents, introduce yourself.
3. Make it easy for your teenager to leave a party. If there is drinking or drug taking or any reason that your teenager wishes to leave a party, make an arrangement that your child can call you (or a designated adult) and you will come, no questions asked. Urge your teenager NEVER to ride home with a driver who has been drinking. You might have an understanding that there will not be punishments or restrictions for a call letting you know that things are getting out of hand.
4. Set curfew for your teenager. These may vary with the child and should be negotiable for special occasions. A sample curfew schedule set by the Community Awareness Committee on Alcohol and Other

Drug Abuse of Garden City, N.Y. is as follows:

School night: Home for supper and rest of the evening except for specific events approved by parents.

Weekends:

9th grade..11:00 p.m.
10th grade..11:30 p.m.
11th grade..12:00 midnight - 12:30 a.m.
12th grade..12:30 a.m.-1:00 a.m.

When Your Teen is Giving a Party

First, there must be parental supervision. Parents are legally responsible for what happens to minors in their home. Second, do not allow alcoholic beverages to be served. Limit the number of guests and let the party be "by invitation only." A word-of-mouth general invitation brings party crashers. More specifically,...

1. Plan in advance. Check party plans with your teenager and know the guest list. If you agree who is invited, you can curb the "open party" situation. Have a couple of "bouncers" (older brothers or good friends) to keep out crashers, tactfully if possible, and to help carry out the party rules.
2. Set a time limit. Set a definite start and ending, not too long. Consider "theme" parties, such as "Roaring Twenties," etc., or video tapes. Serve lots of food that teens like.
3. Agree to rules ahead of time. These might include: no drugs, including alcohol; lights should be left on; some rooms in your house should be off limits; parents' alcohol should be removed.
4. Know your responsibilities. The responsible adult at a teenager's party is visible and AWARE. Remember, IT IS ILLEGAL TO SERVE DRUGS, INCLUDING ALCOHOL, TO MINORS. You are legally responsible for anything that may happen to a minor who has been served drugs or alcohol in YOUR home.
5. Invite another parent or couple over. Other adults are company for you during a long evening and can be of help with problems. Also, if parents have driven teenagers to your house, you might consider inviting them to meet you, however briefly.

Nationally, from 75% to 80% of the total alcoholic beverage sales are in take-out stores, rather than bars, taverns and restaurants. That means that beer, wine and liquor is available in millions of homes across the U.S., often contributing to illegal drinking and alcohol problems among young people.

As a response to this problem, a number of communities in New Jersey have formed an alliance known as "Safe Homes." The program is endorsed by the New Jersey Federation for Drug Free Communities and its overall purpose is to provide a safe place where teenagers can have their parties by providing homes that are safe from alcohol and other drugs.

The program is based on the premise that there are many young people who would like to feel that it is socially acceptable, that it is okay not to illegally use alcohol and other drugs. By providing an environment that is alcohol and drug-free for teenage socials, parents help young people to avoid the kind of peer pressure that often results in problems they would rather avoid.

GOOD NEWS ABOUT EDUCATION

We may not realize it, but educators have done a fantastic job in the past fifty years. This fact is supported by hard evidence. We send more children to school than any other nation--and a greater percentage complete high school than anywhere else in the world. Those who criticize the schools tend to compare apples and oranges. They say, "When I was in school, children could read." Today, however, our country has a literacy rate of 98.2%. In 1945, the literacy rate was only 55%.

Just fifty years ago, only 60% of the youngsters eligible to be in high school were enrolled, compared with the current 94% student enrollment figure. Today, the average 25-year-old American has completed high school. In 1950, the average 25-year-old had completed only 9.3 years of schooling. By any standard, that's improvement. And, more than 88% of our high school graduates perform adequately or better on literacy tests. Wouldn't it be great if 88% of all the products we buy worked?

The record of schools reflects successes in educating many different kinds of people. Schools have educated millions of immigrants and have forged a common ideal from great variety. Schools have educated the poor, the disadvantaged, and the undermotivated effectively. Too, schools have carried the biggest burden of integration--and this achievement has been called the miracle of the century. One recent survey shows that an identical 17% of white and black families with incomes below the poverty line report at least one family member in college. Without question, schools have become more and more skilled in dealing with difficult students, situations, and conditions. Schools have educated the handicapped, the gifted, and the average--and have succeeded with most of them.

Critics talk about the merits of course requirements for secondary students in France, Great Britain, and the Soviet Union. Indeed, these requirements are rigorous by our standards. That's why some insist that our schools aren't demanding enough. Yet, a much higher percentage of our pupils remain in school until the 12th year. In European countries only 20% of the children who would be in the senior class are in school. Furthermore, critics fail to mention international studies which show that our most capable students perform on a par with the most capable students of other countries.

Our schools can and must do better. Yet, we must take pride in our successes. The level of education is increasing. And more education means more opportunity for more children. Unless we, as parents and citizens, are aware of those opportunities, we may not encourage our children to take advantage of them. We should.

SADD NEWS

The Luck SADD group met in the multi-purpose room at 6 p.m., January 12, 1987. Paula Babcock presided.

The group finalized plans for the "Snow Ball." Michelle Nelson is to be in charge of poster making and their distribution to other schools and communities.

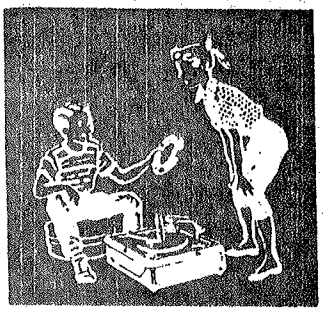
Troy Olson is going to contact the Grantsburg SADD group to see if they would like to come to Luck to share what their group is doing. We'll have more on that later.

Our THANKS to the Luck Lions for their $75.00 donation to SADD to pay for the "Snow Ball" music. We are happy and proud to have their support.

Remember the SADD motto:

IF WE CAN DREAM IT, IT CAN BE DONE

See you at the next meeting, February 9, 1987.



Did you know?

...that the major public health problem for teenagers in the United States is injuries associated with motor vehicle use.

...that 44 percent of all night time fatal alcohol-related crashes are caused by the 16 to 24 age group.

SADD "SNOW BALL"

Luck SADD group is sponsoring a teen dance at the Frederic 300 Club on Saturday, January 24, 1987, from 8-12 p.m. Top 40 hits (plus requests) by Jerry Prete. The club kitchen will be open; a discount will be offered to all teens. This will be a non-alcohol dance. Pop will be available.

A Valentine's Day dance for the 7th and 8th grade Luck students will be held on Saturday, Feb. 14, from 7:30-10:30 p.m. This will be the second dance this school year and we hope it will be as successful as the first one.

There will be a disc jockey to help put the beat in your feet so the price of admission will be $2.00.

"VIAL OF LIFE"

As a service to our community, at no cost to its citizens, we will be sponsoring a program that could be responsible for saving lives. The program is called "Vial of Life." When emergency services are needed, people often cannot speak or are unable to find important information. The "Vial of Life" program is a standard method of insuring that vital information is available to emergency personnel in a crises situation. Participants will pick up a "Vial of Life" packet which will be available throughout our community. The packet will contain: 1) a medical information form to be filled out, 2) a vial for that form to be placed in and tied or taped under the top shelf on the right side inside your refrigerator and 3) a bright sticker to be placed on the right side of your refrigerator on the outside. With participation in this program, we can be assured that vital information is available in a time of need.

NEW VENDING MACHINE

In the near future, students who forget paper, pencils or pens will be able to purchase them at school. Community Ed has made arrangements to lease two student supply vending machines to make supplies available in both elementary and high school areas.

Watch for them soon.

A SAFETY SERVICE

We would like to offer another service to walkers, runners or anyone else who goes out after dark and would like to increase their visability. 3M Company provided light sensitive tape for our trick-or-treaters on Halloween which we used as wrist and ankle bands and made many elementary children much safer. We have some of the tape left and would like to offer it to anyone who could benefit. These strips will be available in the Luck school office.
